SAVE THE DATE - JUNE 16, 2018

Next year, 2018, marks the 250th anniversary of the largest British settlement in North America which was founded by Dr. Andrew Turnbull in 1768. The New Smyrna Beach Southeast Volusia Historical Society is developing a year long celebration with various events spanning throughout the 2018 calendar year.

The celebration will not only focus on the Turnbull Settlement years, but there will also be a celebration of what the community has evolved into being over the years following that initial settlement.

The year is already filled with Art, Music and Food festivals that are held annually. The Southeast Volusia Historical Society & New Smyrna Museum of History, in conjunction with the city of New Smyrna Beach, has invited Turnbull Clan Association (TCA) to participate in the celebration.

On Saturday June 16th, 2018, the Historical Society and the Museum will be hosting an all day event that will be held in New Smyrna's Old Fort Park, which holds some of the only physical remains of the original Turnbull colony. The event will highlight the Turnbull Settlement, the ongoing archaeological discovery of that settlement and several other facets of local history including the Civil War and more.

In response to the invitation, TCA is pleased to announce that we will be participating in the June 16, 2018 events. Long-time tent hosts and Vice-Presidents of Events, Bill and Claudia Trimble will have a Turnbull Tent in the genealogy area. The New Smyrna Beach Fire Department Honor

Remains of the original Andrew Turnbull Settlement, 1768, can be found in the Old Fort Park, New Smyrna Beach, FL.

Guard, whose members became honorary 'Turnbulls' this past year will also be present.

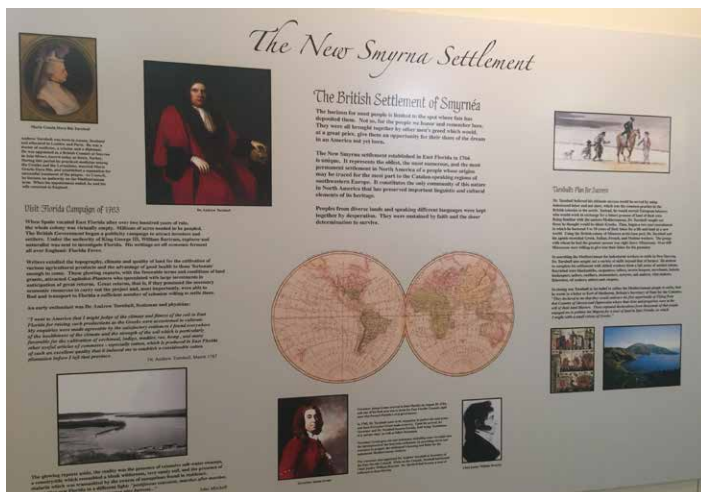

The day's event will cover elements of New Smyrna Beach's history as they relate to the 1700's 1800's & 1900's each in a separate section of the park. There will also be other genealogical groups represented including Minorcans from St. Augustine & possibly representation from the Greek or Hellenic group and there will be information about the Balearic Islands in Spain (previously the Minorca and Mallorca islands) where many of the settlers joined Dr. Andrew Turnbull to make the journey.

In conjunction with the day's activities, this will also be the location of the Turnbull Clan Association Annual General Meeting (AGM).

Mark your calendars and plan to attend. In addition to the day's activities, there are many other places and things to see and do in the area. New Smyrna Beach, Daytona Beach, and St. Augustine are just a short distance away. Orlando is about an hour's drive away. Stay tuned to future Bullseye issues for updates on details and how you can participate.

TENT HOSTS TAKE HOME BEST TENT AWARD

By Marty and Louise Turnbull

Our year started off with a successful Highland Games in Phoenix, AZ, March 4th and 5th. A large crowd turned out in beautiful 75 degree weather. We were honored this year with Arizona Highland Games Best Clan Tent award presented by Mark Pelletier, representative for the Caledonian Society of Arizona. We had a lot of interest in our display and hopefully recruited some prospective new members.

We are always trying to find ways to make our displays more interesting and informative. We had a great many ideas from other tent hosts, and especially from the Bullseye newsletter. Our newest addition is a large laminated map of the Scottish Borders area that receives lots of attention. We also like to feature notable Turnbells, Trumbulls and Trimbles from around the world.

This is our fifth year of hosting here in Arizona, and every year brings new experiences and challenges; sometimes with location, sometimes with weather. But it is always fun and rewarding.

We also do the Prescott, AZ games in mid-May at Watson Lake Park. Our next games will be in Flagstaff, AZ for the Arizona Highland Celtic Festival at Foxglenn Park. If you are in the area, please stop by and say hello.

Last November we drove North to Moab, Utah, for their annual games entitled "Scots on the Rocks." While there, we and our daughter, Laura, were able to visit Arches and Canyonlands National Monuments. On our way home, we spent two days in the Monument Valley, a nice bonus while enjoying a fun-filled weekend in Canyon Country.

Congratulations Marty and Louise from your extended Turnbull family. Thank you for being such good ambassadors for TCA!

Sharing and Caring

Prayers are appreciated for TCA VP Mark Turnbull as he continues to deal with health issues.

EASTER DAWN ATOP RUBERSLAW

Around 40 worshippers gathered at dawn on Easter morning on top of Ruberslaw Hill. Local Minister, Rev. Douglas Nicol, who led the service, said: "On a beautiful Scottish Borders morning as the sun rose in the sky we celebrated the resurrection of Jesus - and then like the disciples of old gathered to break bread over breakfast in the Church Hall."

During the 1600s, the restoration King Charles II of Scotland brought about his attempt to impose Episcopal polity on the Church of Scotland. Conventers were groups who sought to maintain the Presbyterian Church as Scotland's Church. The Conventers would sometimes hold early morning "illegal" prayer services in the crags of Ruberslaw because guards could look down and make sure no one was coming.

About 40 worshippers gathered for sunrise services atop Ruberslaw Easter morning led by the Reverend Douglas Nicol.

Easter Day in 2000 there was an open-air service of worship to commemorate the two thousandth anniversary of the church and to recognize the earlier Christians who had worshiped and prayed there.

Rev. Nicol is the minister for the Ruberslaw churches that include Hobkirk, Southdean, Bedrule, Minto and Denholm parishes. Bedrule Kirk, in particular, has a rich Turnbull history. Within the churches walls are several tributes to its Turnbull history, including a Turnbull Coat of Arms, Turnbull stained glass window, and a plaque to commemorate one of the more famous Borderers, Bishop William Turnbull, who founded Glasgow University.

The Kirk yard is also home to the Turnbull/Bedrule Castle Cairn..

Bitty Bulls

No need for ewe to feel sheepish about this issue. Bitty Bull has herd it's a wooly good one! Part 1 of 2

SHEAR DELIGHT

Sheep are an important part of Scottish business, providing meat, milk, and wool for clothing, mattress filling, blankets, and carpets.

Sheep are classified by their purpose (meat, milk, wool), the type of coat (fine, medium, long, or hair), the color of their faces (black, red, white, spotted) or by body characteristics. Naturally hardy, sheep can navigate the rockier, steep terrain and the colder, humid areas of Scotland. Sheep live about 10-12 years. They have four sets of teeth used for grazing and grinding vegetation. In order to break down and digest the grass, weeds, and hay they consume, they "chew the cud" or regurgitate, rechew, and reswallow their food to be processed in their four chambered stomach. Sheep tracks are never straight, but follow winding paths to allow them to observe what is behind them using their wide angle of vision. Their keen vision, hearing, and sense of smell allow them to perceive predators up to 1,500 feet away. When faced with danger, the sheep will flee and then group back together. Modern domesticated breeds rely more on man to protect them from predators. Predators include coyotes, cougars, black bears, foxes, and bobcats, but in the British Isles, the red fox, badger, predatory birds, and domestic dogs pose more of a threat to the sheep.

The Scottish Blackface is the most common breed of domesticated sheep in the United Kingdom. While no one is certain of the origin of the Blackface, records show that 12th century monks raised the forerunners to the modern Blackface sheep for their wool. James IV of Scotland established a flock of 5,000 Blackface in the Borders around 1503. Blackface ewes are protective mothers to their lambs and are also good milkers. The sheep are adept at mountain grazing. The lean lamb meat has a distinctive pleasant flavor and their wool is found to be very good for heavier use items such as mattress fillings, tweed coats, and heavy blankets.

Today sheep continue to be an important part of Scottish industry, but are raised more for meat than for their milk or wool.

Did Ewe Know?

Scotland has more sheep than people. According to 2016-2017 census, there are 6,800,000 sheep and almost 5,400,000 people.

Racing sheep is popular. Stuffed dummy jockeys are tied to the back of sheep while they navigate a series of hurdles in the race.

There are eleven colors of wool for a Shetland sheep: white, black, dark brown, emsket (bluish grey), fawn, grey, light grey, mioget (yellowish brown), moorit (reddish brown), musket (pale greyish brown), shaela 1 (dark grey), and shaela 2.

In the 1400's Queen Isabella of Spain used money from her wool industry to finance some of Columbus' exploratory voyages to the New World. He left behind some sheep in Cuba and Santa Domingo.

Australia - Sharing a Grandfather's war letter

Australia's Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull, has shared his grandfather's story while paying tribute to a generation of Australians who enlisted in World War I, only for many to never return. He was visibly moved while reading from a letter his grandfather Fred, a 22-year-old schoolteacher from the Macleay River in New South Wales who served on the Western Front, sent to his parents during the conflict. The letter, reprinted in Kempsey's Macleay Chronicle in May 1917, carried solemn news of the deaths of several soldiers from the region. It told of Fred Turnbull's fortune in meeting various people he knew, an expectation of further battles, and his determination to continue fighting until peace was secured.

USA - Agri-Business grows with a wealth of knowledge

York College is offering a new area of study. Building on the success of the existing business department, agriculture courses are being added to create an opportunity unlike any other in Nebraska: an agribusiness program in a Christian college setting. Stacie Turnbull, assistant professor, will be directing the new program, which grew out of conversations with local businesses and York College administrators. "So much of the area surrounding our campus is agriculture," said Turnbull.

Scotland - Posthumous Award

The former Landscape Institute of Scotland Branch Chair, Mark Turnbull, who died suddenly and unexpectedly at the age of 73 last year, was awarded a posthumous LI Gold Medal. As a Landscape Architect, he was a modest yet self-confident man. His ability to absorb information and to determine a path to a solution with minimal fuss instilled confidence in the people he worked with. He was highly respected by the public and private sectors. The President commented, "Mark was like a pebble thrown into a pond - the ripples of his influence still continue."

OOT AND ABOOT

Turnbulls are discovering they aren't alone in the world. From Turnbull Park to Turnbull Winery, the Turnbull name has left its mark many places. If you've visited somewhere named for a Turnbull or tied to Turnbull history, we'd love to know about it. Send information/photos to editor@turnbull-clan.com. Meanwhile, travel through photos to some Turnbull landmarks you might not have known about.
