

HALLOWE'EN AND THE ROLE OF WITCHES

The origins of Halloween date back 2,000 years to the ancient Celtic festivals of Samhain (pronounced sow-in). The Celts who lived mostly in the area that is now Ireland, Scotland, England and northern France, celebrated their new year on the 1st November.

This was the day that marked the end of summer and the harvest, the beginning of the dark, cold winter and was also often associated with human death. The Celts believed that on the night before the new year, the boundary between the worlds of the living and the dead became blurred. On the night of 31st October they celebrated Samhain, when it was believed that the ghosts of the dead returned to earth, a blurring of the physical and spirit worlds, as Halloween's forebear.

The Celts marked Samhain at the midpoint between the Autumn Equinox and the Winter Solstice. Hearth fires in family homes were left to burn out while the harvest was being gathered. When the harvest work was complete, celebrants joined with Druid priests to light massive bonfires and pray.

To commemorate the event, Druids built huge sacred bonfires, where the people gathered to burn crops and animals as sacrifices to the Celtic deities. During the celebration, the Celts wore their costumes, typically consisting of animal heads and skins, and attempted to tell each other's fortunes. When the celebration was over, they re-lit their hearth fires.

Halloween (first named All-Hallows Eve) today is one of the most popular holidays for both kids and adults and continues to be celebrated each year on the 31st October. Historically ancient celebrations have changed over time with the advent of international variations.

From pagan fertility rituals to hallucinogenic herbs, the story of witches and brooms is also an enthralling summary. The evil green-skinned witch flying on her magic broomstick may well be linked to Halloween, however, its early beginnings is mentioned in the bible.

It's not clear exactly when the broom itself was first invented, but the act of sweeping goes back to ancient times when women were using bunches of thin sticks, reeds and other natural fibres to sweep aside dust or ash from a fire or hearth. These were known as 'besoms', the name later changed to 'brooms' and associated with women.

Despite this, the first witch to confess to riding a broom or besom, was, Guillaume Edelin a Priest from Saint-Germain-en-Laye, near Paris in 1453. He was tried, confessed and eventually jailed for witchcraft after he publicly criticised the church's warnings about witches and by the time of Edelin's "confession," the idea of witches riding around on broomsticks was already well established.

Suggestions that the association between witches and brooms may have roots in a pagan fertility ritual, where rural farmers would leap and dance astride poles, pitchforks or brooms in the light of the full moon to encourage the growth of their crops. This "broomstick dance," it seems, became confused with common accounts of evil witches flying through the night on their way to orgies and other illicit pagan meetings.

Broomsticks were also thought to be the perfect vehicles for the special ointments and salves that witches brewed up to give themselves the ability to fly.

At the beginning in the 17th century, records of witches using broomsticks to fly up and out of chimneys became more commonplace.

Stories of scary flying witches continued and over time, they were adapted into the traditional games of Halloween, with the added scary spiders, flying bats, human skulls, black cats and carved candle-lit pumpkins . . . the time to embrace all things spooky!

Bryn Turnbull

Bryn Turnbull is a renowned writer of historical fiction with her fourth and latest release, 'The Berlin Apartment'. This sweeping love story follows a young couple whose lives are irrevocably changed when they're separated overnight by the construction of the Berlin Wall.

Berlin, 1961: When Uli Neumann proposes to Lise Bauer, she has every reason to accept. He offers her love, respect and a life beyond the strict bounds of the East German society in which she was raised — which she longs to leave more than anything.

But only two short days after their engagement, Lise and Uli are torn violently apart when barbed wire is rolled across Berlin, splitting the city into two hostile halves: capitalist West Berlin, an island of western influence isolated far beyond the iron curtain, and the socialist East, a country determined to control its citizens by any means necessary.

Soon, Uli and his friends in West Berlin hatch a plan to get Lise and her unborn child out of East Germany, but as distance and suspicion bleed into their lives and as weeks turn to months, how long can true love survive in the divided city?

VOTING has commenced . . .

You may send an e-mail to communications@turnbullclan.com with your vote. State the name and office of the person you are voting for. Voting ends 30th November. Officers will be announced in the December 2024 Bullseye.

President: Jeff Trimble is a Quality and Technical Director, providing casings for the meat deli industry. He's married to his wife Sue for 32 years, a daughter and a son. He's a tent host for the Milwaukee Games, Wisconsin games and will host the Chicago Scots games in 2024. He enjoys genealogy, fishing, hunting and wildlife conservation. In addition to fulfilling the role duties of president, he would like more Turnbuls involved in the Association and in Highland Games and clan events world wide.

Vice President: Walter Turnbull is seeking a position as Vice President. He is a civil engineer residing in Brandon, Florida with his wife Brittany. He is a veteran, having served in the US Navy. Walter's hobbies and interests include boating, cooking, college football and travelling. Serving two terms as TCA president has reinforced Walter's passion about his Scottish and Turnbull heritage and is hoping to continue sharing his passion with others as Vice President. One of his greatest pleasures has been to meet Turnbull "cousins" from all over. His desire is to promote a greater community of Turnbuls through local, regional, and worldwide events.

Treasurer: Sandy Turnbull currently holds this position and is seeking re-election. Sandy resides in Auburn, Alabama USA and has been supportive and active in Turnbull Clan activities for many years. As treasurer, in addition to the day to day accounting, he oversees the filing of necessary legal documents to maintain TCA's 501-c-3 status. He says, "My Turnbull heritage and extended worldwide family are very much an important part of my life. I consider serving TCA in this capacity and honour and pleasure."

Secretary: Jill Trimble is a family woman and an experienced Elementary Teacher. She grew up in a small town in Indiana, and is currently living in Huntsville, Alabama. Jill and her husband Darian Trimble, have been married for 26 years and have three sons, Houston, Wyatt and Luke. The boys keep them very busy with all their sporting interests, including football, tennis and hockey. They also love to travel together. The family began visiting the Scottish games in 2005 where they also started a search for their Scottish heritage. They began hosting with TCA in 2022 at Stone Mountain in Georgia and plan to host more TCA tents in the Tennessee and Alabama area. They enjoy meeting new Turnbuls at these festivals and learning about their heritage.

VP Communication: Betty Turnbull currently holds this position and is seeking re-election. Betty has been involved in TCA for close to 20 years. In 2005, she became editor of the Turnbull Clan newsletter, The Bullseye, and held that position for fourteen years until Kenneth Turnbull took over. She remains a contributing editor. Betty also organised the first TCA official trip to Scotland in 2007. Since that time, she has organised several additional trips. Betty is author of Scottish themed children's books that emphasize the importance of heritage and family values, including The Man Who Saved the King, the story of 'How Turnbuls got their Name'. When she is not writing, Betty enjoys gardening, travelling, and being Gramma. Betty resides in Durham, North Carolina, USA, with her husband, Wally.

VP of Events: Katherine Turnbull is a security specialist involved in government defense contracting and a professional horse racing photographer. She is a co-administrator of the Turnbull-Trimble DNA project and has a keen interest in researching her Scottish heritage and genealogy. She began hosting clan tents for TCA in 2021, and hosted the TCA Scotland tour in 2023. In her spare time, she enjoys travel, collecting books, creating art, and spending time with her animals. A lifelong equestrian with ties to both sport and racing industries, she resides on her farm - Rulewater, near Martinsburg, West Virginia, USA, where she raises thoroughbred horses, Australian cattle dogs, and Nigerian dwarf goats.

VP International News and Editor: Kenneth Turnbull resides in south-east Queensland, Australia with his wife Patricia. As a former printer and now a semi-retired school Teacher, he currently holds the position as editor for the bi-monthly 'Bullseye' newsletter and is seeking re-election. Kenneth is also the co-author with Norman Turnbull for the 'Borders Tales and Trails' publication. The book relates to the history of Borders battles and key historic Scottish figures. It also describes places of interest to visit, with an emphasis centred on Clan Turnbull sites around the borders.

ARE YOU AN OBSERVER OR A PARTICIPATING MEMBER?

by Wally Turnbull - Honorary Clan Chief

If we are all members of the Turnbull Clan by birth why then do we need a clan association? What does membership in the Turnbull Clan Association (TCA) provide that simply being a member of the clan does not? Both of these are valid questions, the answers to which are why TCA was created in the first place. This association exists to let people know what it means to be a Turnbull and to grow their family of friends.

You may have encountered another Turnbull, perhaps at a Scottish Games, and observed their joy in discovering that they are not alone but have an entire clan family to embrace them. When you witness that, you know the importance of learning about our clan and rich heritage.

It is not uncommon on such occasions for the newcomer to know something about the Clan history, perhaps that there was a king and a bull somewhere back in time. But to now discover that this indeed was a historical event and to learn details, including the date, circumstances, and participants' names, creates pride and a deep sense of belonging.

Being a member of the clan by birth, but not knowing so is good but not enough. Learning that you are part of an extended family structure that exists to serve you and be served by you is of untold value. This cannot occur unless the clan has representation and gatherings of members to make this happen. To paraphrase a great Bible verse, "How can they know unless someone tells them."

a member-supported organization. It receives no grants or financial subsidies of any kind.

Through past contributions of members, TCA has become established as a licensed charitable organization, been granted official arms by the Court of Lord Lyon in Edinburgh, erected a memorial cairn and time capsule in the Bedrule Kirkyard, held clan gatherings all over the world including memorable events in Scotland.

TCA has also provided scholarships to clan related students, stored a barrel of Turnbull Clan whisky in the cellars at the Borders Distillery . . . to be opened and distributed in 2033, and placed a world famous monument of the Turning of the Bull at the Heritage Centre in Hawick, Scotland.

Each of these things required member participation and funding. Your active membership and support will enable others to discover your proud heritage and provide immense pleasure to you, your clan family, and generations to come.

What does the future hold for our clan?

Well, that depends on you.

One can attend a church for years without joining as a member. In that case, it is simply the church that they attend, not the church to which they belong. Belonging means being a part of and contributing, not simply observing.

If the TCA is to fulfill its mission and serve as many of those in our clan as possible, it must have structure, be visible, and be active. For that to happen we need you to be a member, not just an observer. We need your participation and quite frankly, we do need your financial contributions. TCA is

UK - Halloween event for children

About 50 km. south from Middlesbrough on the north-eastern coast, Cedarbarn Farm Shop and Café in Pickering will be hosting a Halloween event for under 10s, comprising pumpkin picking and carving, a ride on the ghost train, plus a spooky walk. Cedarbarn's assistant general manager Lauren Turnbull, who said: "We can't wait to welcome people to our spook-tacular Halloween event and have started making plans to decorate the Dutch barn with seasonal treats."

Australia - Motorcross champion

Young budding 14-year-old Motocross superstar, Steph Turnbull placed second at the Queensland MX Championships in early July. She was also placed fourth on her larger bike and raced her heart out to claim 5th placing at the Australian MX Championships in Perth in September. "I like motocross because it's fun, it just clears my head a bit, the feeling you get when you're riding is just amazing."

USA - New Surgeon appointed

Through high demand, Beaufort Memorial Surgical Specialists in South Carolina has added another general surgeon to their practice. Taylor Turnbull, M.D., arrived at Beaufort after completing her residency in general surgery at Prisma Health Upstate in Greenville, South Carolina. She is skilled in robotic and laparoscopic surgical techniques and brings experience in the treatment of a broad range of acute and chronic diseases

Scotland - Reunited with lost wedding film after 57 years

After 57 years, a long-lost footage of 'husband and wife' wedding in Scotland have been reunited with their wedding after it was found by chance. Aileen and Bill Turnbull got married in Aberdeen in 1967 and later emigrated to Queensland, Australia, but without the film. The footage was found when an old cine film was transferred onto DVD for a man in Aberdeen. He posted an image from it on social media, and the couple in Brisbane later recognised themselves. After watching the film again - which she had only seen once before - Mrs Turnbull told Scotland News an "absolutely amazing" feeling.

Canada - Nature captured in SPCA's wildlife competition

From the backyard to the wilds of B.C., Bruce Turnbull from Penticton the Okanagan photographer captured some of the best nature photos in the BC SPCA's 16th annual Wildlife-in-Focus competition that took first place in the Backyard Habitats category. Turnbull's photo captured a Northern flicker feeding its offspring as they poke their heads out of their home in a tree. "Wildlife photography is a passion of mine, as is studying the wildlife I photograph and learning about the challenges they face," said Turnbull. "Supporting organisations like the BC SPCA's Wild Animal Rehabilitation Centre. our wildlife is very important to me and I am glad my photo helped to raise much needed funds."

Scotland - Rare painting goes on show in Glasgow

A rare painting of the Beatles was among the largely unseen work on show at a unique exhibition of two of Scotland's best-loved artists in Glasgow in mid July. The rare painting of The Beatles by John Byrne, which was done in 1969 and later used as a cover image for The Beatles Ballads LP in 1981, was one of the highlights of the show. Lyon & Turnbull's head of contemporary art, Charlotte Riordan, who curated the exhibition, said: "It has been a pleasure and a privilege to mount this show with the kind support of our collectors."

Scotland - Abernethy Pearl sold for a world record at auction

Video image by Graham Fraser

The largest Scottish freshwater pearl found in living memory was auctioned by Lyon and Turnbull and sold for a world record £93,951. The pearl at a weight of 43.6 grains, was discovered in the River Tay by William (Bill) Abernethy, who was credited as Scotland's last dedicated pearl fisherman. He found it in 1967, before the pearl fishing ban was introduced in Scotland in 1998. Named after its finder, William Abernethy and affectionately known as Little Willie, it could have been growing in its mussel for more than 80 years before Mr Abernethy found it. Among the only Scottish pearls larger than the Abernethy Pearl is the Kellie Pearl, which dates to the 1540s and is set into the Crown of Scotland.

New Zealand - Festival Queen reflects

With this year's Blossom Festival in its sights, Myah Turnbull reflected on her experiences of the last year's Blossom Festival while growing up in Central, entering as a princess, and then being crowned queen on the main stage. "It was an amazing experience . . . I was so happy to be involved in all the community events leading up to the day and loved making connections in the community such as the rest homes and the art shows." Myah said her advice to people thinking about entering as a princess was to "totally do it". The crowning of the queen has been a feature for the last 67 years.

Virgin Islands - Literary Renaissance

Books galore at the busy Walter E. Washington Convention Center in Washington D.C., with many book lovers from across the nation. Cadwell Turnbull, a native of St. Thomas and author of his new novel "The Lesson," the festival was not just an opportunity to promote his work, but a platform to represent the unique narratives emerging from the Virgin Islands. Turnbull's festival experience . . . "There's something special about being able to talk about home and share our stories in this space," he reflected.

OUT AND ABOUT WITH THE TCA SHOWING THE FLAG

SCOTTISH INVENTIONS: DAVID STIRLING (SAS) 1915-1990

Researched and compiled by Kenneth Turnbull

Scottish entrepreneurs, geniuses and eccentric inventors and their ability to think outside the square, have helped to change our everyday lives throughout the world for the better. Here is another example of Scottish ingenuity with imaginative foresight that has ultimately influenced the developing world.

'Who Dares Wins' was the regimental war motto of the Special Air Services. Founded and created by a Scottish officer David Stirling, born in Keir, Stirlingshire and the son of a Brigadier General in the Scots Guards. Commissioned into the Scots Guards in 1937, David was a tall and athletic figure and trained to climb Mount Everest.

Then in 1941, he volunteered for a new force, the No.8 Guards Commando, anticipating greater excitement than in an ordinary regiment. This later became Z Force.

Lt. Colonel David Stirling - 1942

He remained convinced that due to the highly mechanised nature of war, a small team of highly trained soldiers with the advantage of surprise, the team would attack several targets from the desert in a single night. An audacious kind of guerrilla warfare was what Stirling had in mind.

The aim was to catch a larger and superior enemy unawares . . . a tradition carried down from the likes of King Robert the Bruce. His plan was to lead a well-equipped raiding party through the Sahara Desert, generally thought to be an impassable sea of sand. Once crossed, the raiders would be well behind the enemy lines with a great advantage for them to create chaos at both vulnerable and valuable targets.

Stirling managed to persuade the top military to carry out his plan and was given the misleading team name of Special Air Service (SAS). His planned aim was simple with effective tactics using the cover of darkness and bluff through their language skills and getting in and out as quickly and quietly as possible. Through these tactics, hundreds of enemy aircraft were mined and destroyed, fuel dumps set alight and many bridges and roads were blown apart. Through these risky and brave acts, Stirling was speedily promoted to Lieutenant Colonel.

At the end of the war, the SAS was disbanded, but it was soon realised that such a clever military invention was to be an ongoing benefit to the British Isles national security and so the SAS was reformed in 1947. It was one of two territorial regiments with Lieutenant Colonel Stirling again at its heart.
